Once the Maharaja of Travancore ordered a grand dinner in his palace. In the afternoon before the dinner, the Maharaja entered the kitchen to survey the dishes that had been prepared for the feast. "What are you going to do with those vegetable scraps?" he asked the cook pointing to the basket of scraps near the cook. The cook replied, "They are waste. We will throw them away." You cannot waste all these bits and pieces away. The cook was in a fix and kept staring at the vegetable scraps for some time. Suddenly, an idea flashed across his mind. He took all the vegetable bits, washed and cleaned them well. Then he cut them in a huge pot and placed it on the fire to cook. Next, he ground some fresh coconut green chillies and garlic together. He added this paste and some salt to the cooking vegetables. A tempting smell started coming from the pot. Now he whipped some sand and.

Find a way to use them." And so saying to the cook, the Maharaja commanded strongly and walked away. The cook was in a fix and kept staring at the vegetable scraps for some time. Suddenly, an idea flashed across his mind. He took all the vegetable bits, washed them and cleaned them well. Then he cut them in long strips. He put them in a huge pot and placed it on fire to cook. Next, he ground some fresh coconut, green chillies and garlic together. He added this paste and some sand and salt to the soup. He also poured a few handfuls of coconut oil and decorated the dish with some leaves, lemon and lemon juice. The dish was ready. The cook served this new dish to the guests that evening. Everyone was eager to know the name of the new dish. The cook thought and thought. He named it Wonderful Waste. It soon became famous all over Kerala and is now one of the dishes in a traditional Kerala feast. And imagine, it all came from a basket of waste!
